- Task 12 My learning record

Part 1: Introduction to classical civilization

Task 1A - What can you think of when we talk about European history?

The following items can be traced back to different cultures around the globe. Select those derived from European history. Click here (pp.1) for the task.

Task 1 Choose items from European history in the following:

Task 1B: Listen to the song about ancient Greece.

(IT Note: This task can be done with Padlet or Mentimeter for online teaching contexts)

What can you learn from this song? Write in the box below. Be ready to share your answers with the class.

Task 2 - Read the text below to complete the following tasks

Reading Text 1 (For sub-topic 1)	words in red: subject-specific vocabulary words in blue: General academic vocabulary words in green: Prep. phrases of time (target language form) words in yellow: linking words

Minoan civilization lasted between 3000 BC to 1450 BC. Around 3000 BC. The Minoans started the Minoan civilization on the island of Crete. They had advanced skills in architecture (建築) and pottery (製陶). The influence of this civilization spread to the Greek peninsula (半島) and neighbouring islands.

Mycenaean civilization lasted between around 1450 BC to 1100 BC. Around 1450 BC, the Mycenaeans conquered (征服) Crete and many territories on the Greek peninsula. They learned from the Minoan civilization and developed their own civilization. They were famous for their skills in ship-building and metal-work.

Birth of classical civilization

The Mycenaean civilization went into decline in 1200 BC. Around 1100 BC, the Greek peninsula entered its Dark Ages.

In the 8th century BC, the ancient Greeks absorbed the Aegean civilization, while the ancient Romans learned from the ancient Greeks. Both developed their own civilizations later on. They were known as the 'ancient Greco-Roman civilization' or 'classical civilization'. The classical civilization continued until the 6th century AD. Although it happened between ancient times and Medieval Times, we can still find its impact and contribution to the world today.

Sub-stage 2: Mycenaean civilization

- language of description:
 - a. Pronoun reference: 'they' refers to 'the Mycenaeans'
 - b. Explaining cause and effect: [A] learns from [B]: [A] = effect; [B] = cause

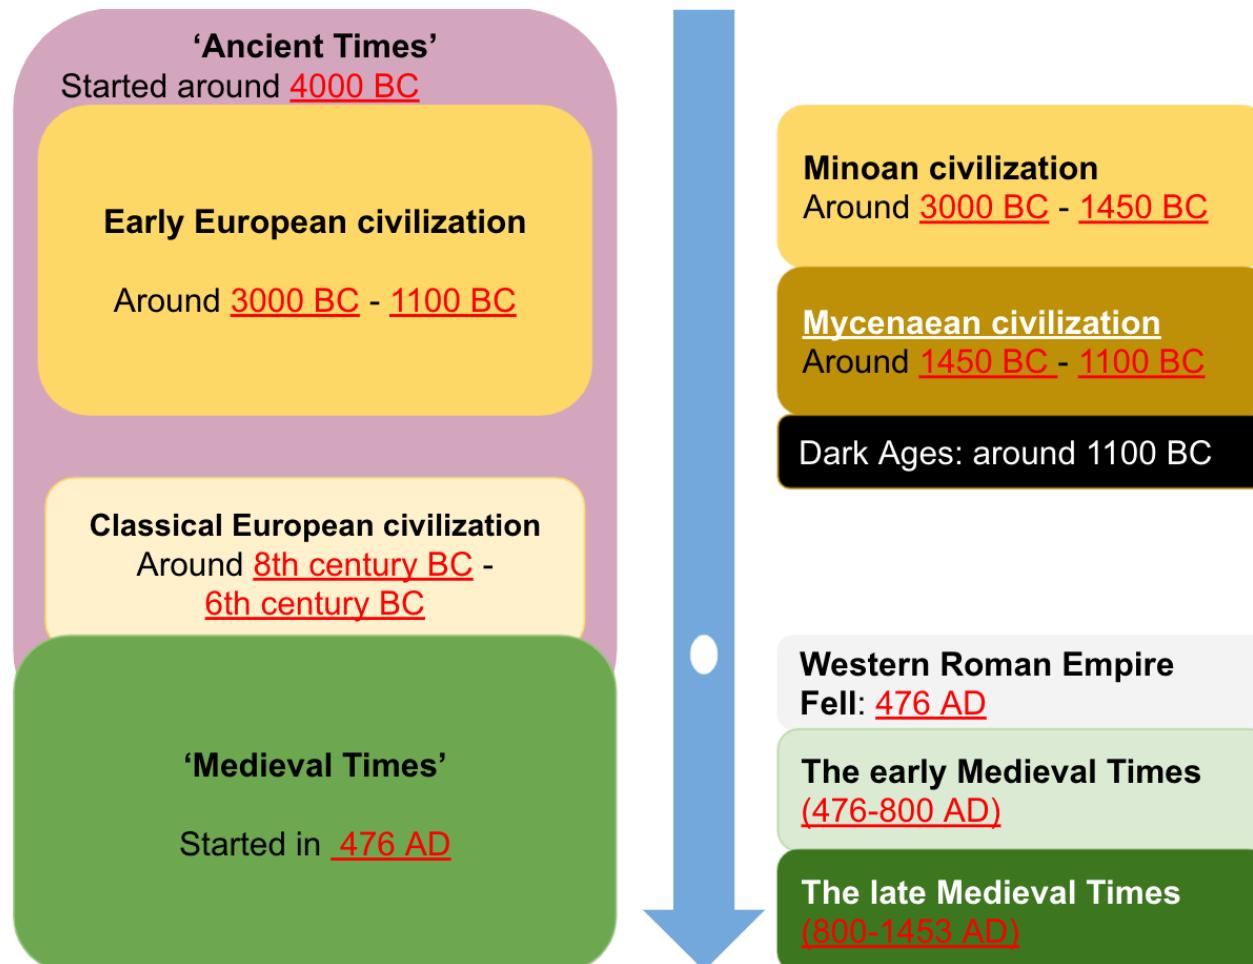

Stage 2: Birth of classical civilization

- language of description:
 - a. defining/explaining: passive voice: [A] is known as [B]
 - b. Linking words: while (expressing the same time); although (subordinating conj. = in spite of)

Task 2A

The timeline shows the development of civilization in Europe. Read the text again and complete the timeline.

Task 2B Arrange the following events in chronological order beginning with the earliest.

(IT Note: This task can be done with Nearpod for online teaching contexts)

- A. End of classical European civilization
- B. Rise of early European civilization
- C. Start of ancient times of Europe
- D. End of Medieval Times of Europe

Task 3 - Read the text below to complete the following two tasks.

Reading Text 2 (For sub-topic 1) Ancient Greek Civilization Around 800 BC, the ancient Greeks built city-states (城邦) and invented writing. centre of trade, learning and art on the peninsula. This period marked the rise and spread of the ancient Greek civilization.

During the Classical Age, the ancient Greeks set up colonies in the Black Sea and Mediterranean regions. The Macedonian king Alexander the Great further built up a large empire that covered Europe, Asia and Africa. The ancient Greek civilization was thus widely spread in these conquered areas.

During the subsequent Hellenistic Age (323 BC-146 BC), the ancient Greek civilization still influenced the Mediterranean region, and West and Central Asia. From the 3rd century BC, the ancient Romans started invading ancient Greece. They finally occupied the Greek peninsula in 146 BC. The peninsula was then mainly influenced by the ancient Roman civilization. The ancient Greek civilization declined.

Stage 2: Decline

Task 5: 12 Zodiac Signs and 12 Greek Gods/Goddesses: Click here (pp. 2-14) for the answer key of the task

Classical civilization seems distant but some of its legacy is close to our everyday life. There are 12 major gods/goddesses in Greek mythology (p.31 of your textbook), and each of them represents one of the twelve zodiac signs (星座) that people couldn't stop talking about nowadays. Based on your understanding of the personality features of each zodiac sign, match them with the corresponding gods/goddesses. Write the name of the god below the sign it represents. Be ready to share your answers with your partners and the whole class.

but the Council of Elders got the highest power. The elders in Sparta were chosen from nobles, the minority of the population. Compared with monarchy, oligarchy could avoid absolute rules. This system was adopted and improved by later generations. The Roman Republic was an example.

Athenian democracy

‘Democracy’ was understood as ‘rule by the people’ in ancient Greek. In the 6th century BC, the Athenians set up a democratic government. The Assembly was the decision-making body. All citizens regardless of wealth could join the Assembly and vote (included secret ballot 不記名投票) on bills. They could also be elected as officials by lots. Although only citizens could take part in governance, Athenian democracy was the most open political system in ancient Greece. Today, the political systems of many countries learn from the Athenian democratic system of ‘public participation’ and ‘secret ballot’.

Ancient Rome

The Romans learned the ancient Greek civilization from their neighbouring peoples. They also developed different political systems because of civil wars and foreign expansions. These were the great legacies of the ancient Roman civilization.

Republican system

“Republic” means “a state ruled by the people”. At first, the ruling power was in the hands of the patricians (貴族). Later, the plebeians (平民) could also take part in governance through their tribunes (護民官) and consuls (執政官).

Since then, the government of the Roman Republic had consisted of the elements of both oligarchy and democracy. In terms of the element of oligarchy, the consuls and senators only came from a small group of patricians until the 5th century BC. As for the element of democracy, from the 4th century BC onwards, all male Roman citizens (patricians and plebeians) formed the Assembly, also known as the Legislative, to elect officials and vote on bills.

Sub-aspect 2: Athenian democracy

Aspect 2: forms of governance in ancient Rome

Sub-aspect 1: Republican system

Tribunes (護民官) were elected to represent the plebeians in the Senate. Tribunes could veto bills which were against the plebeians' will. Consuls chosen from the plebeians also increased the power of the majority. The Roman republic had two consuls as rulers. They were elected by all male citizens, not hereditary (世襲). The two consuls also checked and balanced each other. This prevented the rise of absolute rule.

In sum, the element of democracy protected the right of plebeians. It was a very progressive political system at that time. The idea of republic spread with the expansion of the Roman Republic. Its influence continues today. Many modern countries still adopt the republican system.

Imperial system

After the republican system came the imperial system. During the period of the Roman Empire, the Roman emperor was an absolute ruler who held all executive, military and judicial powers (行政、军事、司法权力). He was above all government organs. With regard to local administration, the Roman emperors improved the provincial system and appointed governors to rule for them. This maintained the stability of the conquered regions as well as the empire. The Roman system of administrative centralization has become an important model for later reference. In many modern states, the central government (中央政府) holds supreme power (最高權力) and local governments (地方政府) get their power to rule from the central government.

Sub-aspect 2: Imperial system

Do you know? (I)

Background to the political development in ancient Greece

Geographical barriers

Ancient Greece was hilly. It included the Greek peninsula, Crete, the west coast of Asia Minor and islands in the Aegean Sea (present day Greece, Macedonia and Turkey). As places were separated by sea and mountains, the Greeks set up independent city-states.

Cultural differences

The ancient Greeks were made up of different tribes (部落). They had different cultures. It was difficult to unite them and set up a unified government. They ruled themselves and developed different forms of government.

Social differences

Social differences also led to different forms of government. For example, a highly centralized government was needed in Sparta so as to rule the large population of slaves. As for Athens, more people engaged in trade and they wanted more power from nobles. This prompted the rise of democracy.

Do you know? (II)

Features of ancient Greek political development

Co-existence of city-states

There were several hundred city-states of different sizes in ancient Greece. Each city-state included a city and the surrounding land. They were ruled by independent governments. Relations among these city-states were almost equal. Athens and Sparta were the two most representative city-states.

Diverse forms of governance

According to the ancient Greek scholar Aristotle, ancient Greek city-states had three main forms of government: monarchy meaning 'rule by kings' (e.g. Macedonia), oligarchy meaning 'rule by a group of nobles (貴族)' (e.g. Sparta) and democracy meaning 'rule by the people' (e.g. Athens). Under different forms of governance, the level of citizens' participation in politics varied. In ancient Greece, citizens were free adult men who were born in and lived in the city-states. They had the right to vote and be elected as officials.)

The following table is for the whole class/ the less able students' writing task

City-state/ country	Ancient Greek		Ancient Rome

Language Support II - Language of definition

The following sentences show how to define things in writing:

Terms to be defined	means/was/was understood as/was defined as	Definition
'Oligarchy'	was defined as	'rule by a small group of people' in ancient Greek.
'Democracy'	was understood as	'rule by the people' in ancient Greek.
Republic	means	"a state ruled by the people"
[A]	means/was/was understood as/ was defined as	[B] (a noun/an adjective/a sentence)

Your turn: Write the definition for the following item

Terms to be defined	means/was/was understood as/was defined as	Definition
Imperial system	means	'rule by the emperor only' in ancient Rome.

Language Support III - Language of cause and effect

In text 3, highlight the sentences that tell you the influence of classical civilization on today's lives.

Examples:

Cause	Effect	Signal words (verb/verb group)
Compared with monarchy, oligarchy could avoid absolute rules.	This system was adopted and improved by later generations.	was adopted and improved

Effect	Cause	Signal words (verb/verb group)
Today, the political systems of many countries learn from	the Athenian democratic system of 'public participation' and 'secret ballot'.	learn from

Signal words talking about influence and significance

verbs/verb groups		nouns	adjectives

Task 7 - Pair up the cause in Table 1 and the effect in Table 2 and use a proper signal word to write about the significance of law and the creation of culture in classical civilizations to today's lives.

(IT Note: This task can be done with a Nearpod pairing activity for online teaching contexts)

Table 1

1. The concepts of natural rights and equality in the Roman law (c)
2. Ancient Roman sculptures emphasized showing the real image of mortals and paid attention to details (e)
3. The names of related Greek gods (a)
4. Ancient Greek thinkers asked many questions and tried to find the answers through methods such as rational argument. (b)
5. the concept of forum (d)

Table 2

- a. The English words 'chaos', 'hygiene', 'music'
- b. Western philosophy
- c. modern Western law codes
- d. city planning
- e. the development of Western art

1. The concepts of natural rights and equality in the Roman law were inherited by Western law codes.
2. Ancient Roman sculptures emphasized showing the real image of mortals and paid attention to details. They had a great impact on the development of Western art.
3. The English words 'chaos', 'hygiene', 'music' come from the names of related Greek gods.
4. Ancient Greek thinkers asked many questions and tried to find the answers through methods such as rational argument. This gave birth to Western philosophy.
5. The concept of forum is widely used in city planning

Task 8 How to introduce classical civilization to your friends?

In this unit you have read two types of texts: historical recounts and information reports. Historical recounts are for recalling (忆述) true historical stages (歷史階段). Reading 1 and Reading 2 are historical recounts. This text type begins with the historical background and then talks about the historical events or stages in time order.

The structure of historical recounts is as follows:

^Background

You may use:

- action verbs in the simple past to tell what people did or what happened;
- the simple present to define some terms
- specific nouns to name specific people or things;
- prepositional phrases to tell information of by whom/what, when, where, why;

^ Historical events in time order

You may use:

- prepositional phrases indicating time to sequence the events;
- use action verbs (past tense) to describe what happened;
- use “but” and “while” to compare and contrast (对比);
- use “to-do” (to-infinitive phrases) to tell why (the purpose)
- use “firstly”, “secondly” and “thirdly” (sequence connectives) to tell sequence of events

^ Evaluation of the historical stages(optional)

While Reading 1 and 2 are historical recounts, Reading 3 is an example of Information Report. Information reports are for giving factual information about something (e.g. governance in classical times).

The structure of information report is as follows:

^Classification / Definition

You may use:

- “A is/are B”/ “A means (can be understood, can be seen, refers to, is defined as) B” to classify / define;
- Relative clauses (defining) to define
- ‘There is/are’ + class nouns to classify

^Description / Information of different aspects

- General nouns/noun phrases to name general objects
- Prepositional phrases to give detailed information of 5Ws
- Action verbs (timeless present or passive) to tell what happens

^Summary (optional)

Task:

In the following writing template (pp.16), fill in the blanks to complete the summary of the classical civilization. Then self-record a 2-3 minute presentation and share it with your teacher and classmates.

Background:

Brief introduction/ overview of the events being reported, and signposting for the whole text

Historical events in time order:

Describing the developmental stages of the events, usually one stage in one paragraph

Summary of European classical civilization

The period 4000 BC to 1453 AD was divided into 'ancient times' (from 4000 BC to 800 BC), classical civilization (from 800 BC to 476 AD) and 'Medieval Times' (from 476 AD to 1453 AD).

The first stage, ancient times, is also known as the Early European civilization or the Aegean civilization. It was influenced by two advanced civilizations. The first was Minoan civilization (between 3000 BC to 1450 BC), featured by architecture skills and pottery. The second was Mycenaean civilization which lasted between around 1450 BC to 1100 BC, famous for skills in ship-building and metal-work.

The second stage is classical civilization. When the Mycenaean civilization declined in 1200 BC, there was the Dark Ages in the Greek peninsula in 1100 BC. After that, around 800 BC, the ancient Greco-Roman civilization' or 'classical civilization' rose. During this time, the ancient Greeks built city-states and invented writing. As a result, the ancient Greek civilization entered the "Classical Age" (around 5th to 4th centuries BC) with rapid development in trade, learning and art.

During the subsequent Hellenistic Age (323 BC-146 BC) in classical civilization, the ancient Greek civilization was still influential in the Mediterranean region, and West and Central Asia. However, from the 3rd century BC, the ancient Romans started invading ancient Greece. They finally occupied the Greek peninsula in 146 BC, marking the end of the ancient Greek civilization and the beginning of the ancient Roman civilization.

Task 9 Writing Task (one of the following; for more able students)

Task 11 My Vocabulary Bank

My Vocabulary Bank

Do you want to write better answers to questions in

Good writing comes from well-written paragraphs and sentences, and well-written paragraphs and sentences are built with proper English vocabulary. Generally, English vocabulary can be sorted into three groups: subject-specific (專科的) vocabulary, general academic vocabulary, and logical connectors (linking words).

- Subject-specific vocabulary: key concepts specific to a subject, namely Life and Society or Integrated Humanities.
- General academic vocabulary: Words that are used more often in written texts rather than informal conversations. They help us express ideas more precisely.
- Logical connectors (linking words): conjunctions and phrases that connect ideas.
